Columbanus Common Cultural Heritage

Ballyholme Yacht Club & Andora Sailing Club Twinning

Twinning is a shared commitment for the two sailing clubs that have the same understanding and aspirations for the new link based on Columbanus Common Cultural Heritage.
European citizens on the path of Colombano are already involved in a cultural project on the waterways in Peregrinus Project, this dialogue on the waterways already started in schools sees in this twinning recognition of a common cultural heritage that is expressed in the secular tradition of the navigation in Northern Ireland and North West Italy.
By allowing people to experience the daily life of others, to debate and discuss important issues of the day, and to discover new cultures and the languages of their partners, twinning helps citizens to understand that they belong to one community of values.
Have been defined together clear objectives and types of activities, and where possible agree from the outset on dates by which an assessment of the project can be established.
Cultural Associations as Green Butterflies, Friends of Columbanus, small but active team, can help to maintain connections, develop the partnership through new projects. European citizens on the path of colombano are already involved in a cultural project on the waterways.
Pupil and student exchanges are often one of the high points of a partnership, and can help to stimulate interest in learning the language of the partner country. These actions tend to involve a major part of inhabitants since, by their nature, they can involve parents, teachers and school staff, student associations, etc.
The two Clubs base the agreement upon a reciprocal engagement to mutually support and promote the Clubs' Sporting Programmes and Social Events. Members of the two Clubs shall benefit from the Structures and Services offered by each Club in conformity with agreed regulations.
